

Cam Michael

Artist Bio:

I am an emerging mixed media artist interested in social inclusion, working with themes of redefining value and potential, and relationships between personal identity and perception in the spaces we inhabit.

My work is broadly informed through life experiences of disability, being a carer and support worker for others, living in Australia but growing up outside of in Australia, and identifying as LGBTI. Things that are not always visible or seen as valuable by others in society. As a result I have been interested in the value of the perspective of 'other' and the benefits of social inclusion and new perspectives.
